Computer Science student with a strong background in UI/UX design through academic, freelance, and competition projects. Experienced in translating user needs into intuitive and visually engaging digital experiences while maintaining brand alignment and consistency. Recognized through multiple achievements in UI/UX design competitions and hands-on experience in a real-world project for a major XL Axiata event. With a technical understanding of front-end development, I am able to consider technical feasibility and collaborate effectively with developers throughout the design process.
